

Cousik Champions the Harmonies of Nature to Inspire in the Classroom

Rama Cousik produces amazing garden videos and often films new ones using her phone by walking outside her home.

The Purdue University Fort Wayne associate professor of special education in the Department of Counseling and Graduate Education recently shared a clip of female and male goldfinches happily chirping away from a bush in her front yard. The color and the birds' enthusiasm were as vibrant as any nature channel show.

Dozens of bird species have found a home on Cousik's property, and she and her husband happily capture riveting pictures of them all. From their perspective, if the birds are happy, the humans will be delighted.
