Helping You Discover “What It Takes”

Hello, Friends,

I hope you are as excited as I am to begin the semester on Monday! It has certainly been a lonely and quiet summer without you. On behalf of all of us on campus, welcome back to those who are rejoining us for another semester—and an extra-special welcome to the nearly 2,000 new students joining us for the first time!

You will be receiving plenty of emails in the next couple of weeks, and while I know it may seem like a lot, they are all critical to your success. Our What it Takes series will be sent to you every Sunday, with a few other days scattered in there. It’s designed to provide you with specific information at critical times in the semester. Please make sure you are checking your email daily for all university communications!

Something we’ve been working on over the summer to help you get acclimated or reacclimated to campus is a revamped Enrollment Management and the Student Experience website. It’s a great place to find important information about resources, ways to get involved on campus, etc. There you can also view the full list of semester programs and events in the Fall Programming Guide. Just click on the Student Resources tab on that site and then scroll down to the Events Guide section, or pick up a hard copy that’s available at multiple locations on campus.

I look forward to seeing all of you at Campus Kickoff events over the next two weeks. Please introduce yourself. You are the absolute best parts of our jobs and, whether you go to PFW or IUFW, it is my sincere hope that you have the best possible experience while you are here.

If I can ever be of support or assistance, please email me at VCSA@pfw.edu.

Let’s have an awesome fall together!
